

Steve Wolff

MYT Presenter

Dr. Steven Wolff has over twenty-five years' experience as a professor teaching and researching team effectiveness and leadership. Together with Vanessa Druskat, Steven developed a theory of team emotional intelligence that extends the theory of individual emotional intelligence to the group level. His publications have appeared in the Harvard Business Review, the Journal of Applied Psychology, and others. He worked as a research consultant at the Hay Group, where he helped Richard Boyatzis and Daniel Goleman develop their second generation Emotional and Social Intelligence Inventory (ESCI) and has 15 years' experience in the high-tech industry as an engineer and manager. Steven is a member of the Consortium for Research on Emotional Intelligence in Organizations.